

DD2480 - Assignment 1 DECIDE - Essence

Group 5: Serhan Çakmak, Martin Catheland, Simon William Grady Hocker,
Maja Larsson & Nicole Wijkman

Way of working

The project initiated by establishing fundamental principles and constraints, guiding the overall workflow within the group. Defining key practices, tools, and the chosen programming language further solidified the groundwork. With this established framework, team members began adopting it, initiating the project. Over time, the framework underwent enhancements as the group grew more comfortable with the practices and tools, contributing to improved task completion. An integral project practice involved regular meetings, allowing each member to ask for help and dividing tasks.

The team's mission, evident from the project's outset, was to adhere to instructions and construct functional structures for task completion. Comprising five members with diverse competencies, the group identified specific skills required for the project, facilitating the assignment of both group and individual responsibilities. Early enablement of open and honest communication among members fostered valuable dialogue during the project's planning and execution stages.
